Estate Planning Lessons from James Gandolfini's Grave

By Juliette Fairley

NEW YORK (MainStreet)-More than $30 million in earnings of The Sopranos' star James Gandolfini may end up in IRS coffers simply because the acclaimed actor didn't plan enough. As a result, his heirs may have to sell many of his assets to meet estate tax obligations.

"The predicament facing Gandolfini's heirs shows that regardless of notoriety or wealth everyone should have a well-planned, sound will," said Kevin Spencer, an estate attorney in Dallas.

In his will, James Gandolfini allotted 30% to each of his two sisters, 20% to his wife and 20% to his daughter. By leaving only 20% of his estate to his wife, Gandolfini missed out on what could have been an unlimited marital deduction.

"The goals of estate planning is to pay as little tax as possible and the second is to postpone any tax that might be payable as long as possible," said Spencer. "The easiest way to postpone taxation is to give all of your estate to your spouse so that it wouldn't be taxed until her death. Of course, you want to preserve your own exemption amount first" said Spencer.
