Business Brief...

NASA / EDC Tech Transfer Conference!

Think about a swarm of robots accomplishing site preparation work on Mars, and an Earth-moving equipment company sending the same brand android to ready a remote location for lucrative mining operations.

Or maybe a lighting company interested in partnering with NASA to create improved ultraviolet LED systems for Earthly applications - NASA needs the same technology for biological decontamination of deep space habitats.

Interviewing For A Job

by Patrick Morley

Courtesy of: Joel Parker

Dear Son,

Your vocation will be one of the best opportunities you will ever have to express your identity and purpose as a follower of Christ.

You asked if I had any interviewing advice for you. I responded, "Just be yourself." I said that, partly, because you are who you are (no sense making them think they're hiring someone else!). But mostly because you are exactly the kind of man any thinking person would leap to hire!

In the meantime, I recall how much time I've spent interviewing myself, and what has been important to me. It got me thinking about you, all your friends, the graduating children of men I know and of friends of our ministry. So, I decided to write an article that could be useful for any young person who wanted advice on how to have a good interview. Here are my thoughts....
