Michael started working for McDonnell Douglas/Boeing Space Operations Company at Kennedy Space Center, Florida in 1982 and remained with Boeing Space Operations Company until the completion of Bill Bender is one of the Founding Members of the Spacecoast Technical Network.

He is back from Afghanistan for a little while so we asked him to come to speak to us about his experiences and what he sees for STN's future.

Ron Caswell is a former Speaker Coordinator, Board of Directors member and Executive Director of

Bill Bender, STN Founder

STS-135, the last flight of the Space Shuttle Program in 2011.

He has twenty nine years experience of electrical systems, integration, and test engineering within the aerospace environment at the Kennedy Space Center. He is a leader recognized as highly proficient in multi-task integration, and has exceptional team leadership and performance skills. During his tenure at Kennedy Space Center, he received numerous NASA and customer achievement awards for exceptional performance.

Michael earned a Bachelor's Degree in Electrical Engineering (BSEE) and a Master's degree in Computer Science (MSCS). He is currently attending educational and skill improvement classes, workshops, Launch Pad Job Clubs and weekly meetings offered by the Brevard Workforce and the Space Coast Technical Network.

As well as being extremely helpful at the STN BBQ, Michael's hobbies include enjoying the beach, the pool and growing a small vegetable garden.
